

ADVANCE QUESTIONS TO SWAZILAND – third batch

SPAIN

- Swaziland is provided with several legislative instruments to fight against women discrimination, but there are still some inequalities in the practice, as well as some laws that foresee women's access to economic resources mediated through husbands. Is the government expecting to adopt specific measures to fight effectively against women discrimination in the family and labour contexts?
- Is there any temporal estimation or date to initiate a dialogue between civil society and the king H.E Mswati? Does the government plan to implement more political freedoms in the country?
